OCC CAMERA ACADEMY 1

Camera Academy 1 is held the 2nd meeting date of the month at 5:30 p.m. in the Oak Room of the Marks Street Senior Center starting again in June 2017.

It will be geared towards new photographers or those that need a refresher on the topics of camera basics, exposure, and composition.

If you feel like this program would be helpful for you, whether you just purchased a camera or have been using a camera for a while, we invite you to attend. The topics will be presented one at a time over a three-month period.

The goal of Camera Academy 1 is for the same individuals to attend for the three months; then shortly after the third session, there will be a private field trip held for those individuals with the instructors present. The date for the field trip will be announced at the first session and details will be emailed to attendees who have registered at each presentation.

The next session for Camera Academy 1 will begin on June 26, 2017. Matt Klinger will present "Camera Basics/ Know Your Camera." The second session will be held July 24, 2017 with a presentation on exposure by Wayne Bennett, and the third session is August 28, 2017 by Jeffry Moore on Composition Basics.

For most photographers, technical skills of knowing how to use your camera to achieve the best possible exposure are of the utmost importance. It is also important to know how to compose your images in order to create images that grab a viewer's attention. With the understanding of a few guidelines and some practice, that goal is within every photographer's grasp! Off Camera Artificial Lighting
While Shooting Tethered

For many photographers the initial leap to off camera artificial lighting can be quite intimidating. In reality it is not that difficult and can help take your photography skills to an entirely new level. On June 12, 2017 our very own George Crudo will be demonstrating his technique for off camera strobe lighting. You will learn about key light vs fill light, various types of modifiers, how to trigger lights remotely, and how to immediately and accurately assess your shots by tethering to a computer or iPad. This presentation will also demonstrate that you do not need a large budget to get professional results. In many cases one light (either a speedlight or strobe) will do the job.

George Crudo is a commercial food and architectural photographer and a long time member of the Orlando Camera Club. He is a food photography instructor for the Bryan Peterson School of Photography and his work has been published internationally in cookbooks, restaurant menus, news articles and web sites. He is also a contributing stock photographer at Getty Images and Stockfood.

APPROVED CHANGES REGARDING COMPETITIONS

JUDGE SELECTION

We will have a screened handpicked pool of judges that either have a proven track record with the club, or a new judge that will be instructed in the method of judging that will be consistent with the needs, sensitivities and purpose of our club.

The selection process will take place at the beginning of each fiscal year, whereas the director of judging, or a judging committee, would select nine judges for the year (three for each of the six competitions). Each judge would commit to two competitions per year. These proposed changes will hopefully alleviate some of the inconsistencies we have seen with judging and help make for a more enjoyable and educational experience for all of our members.

ELEVATION TO "A" CATEGORY SHOOTER

The current rules for a "B" shooter to move up to a category "A" shooter do not take into account the fact that "B" shooters can consistently place second or third in competitions and never move up to the "A" category. Therefore a new point/scoring system has been established.

A member who achieves a total of 30 points will automatically be elevated into the category of "A" shooter. This will be retroactive to October 2016.

Points are accumulated in the following manner:

- 10 points for a first place win in a monthly competition
- 5 points for a second place win in a monthly competition
- 3 points for a third place win in a monthly competition

The rules regarding winners of the annual competitions remain unchanged. Any member who wins first place in any category in the annual competition will automatically be categorized as an "A" shooter.

NAMES OF ENTRANTS ON COMPETITION NIGHT

Only the names of First, Second and Third place winners will be announced during the critiquing of images on competition night. All other images will only have the score and title announced. If any member would like the name of a photographer for a particular image, the Director of Competitions can provide that information once the competition has ended. Author names can also be found on the website once the competition gallery is available for viewing.

COMPETITION THEMES FOR 2017-2018

The votes are in and the themes have been selected for the 2017 - 2018 club calendar year. The OCC Board of Directors and department chairs have just completed the selection process for next year's competition themes. Those themes and corresponding dates are as follows:

10/9/17	Action
12/11/17	Nature
2/12/18	Open
4/9/18	Solitude
6/11/18	Weather
8/13/18	Open

So, don't wait! Keep those themes and dates in mind as you create photos during the upcoming months so that you'll have many great images to choose from for entry into each competition.

13th Annual Waterlily Celebration

On Saturday, June 17, McKee Botanical Garden will host its 13th Annual Waterlily Celebration from 8:30 am - 2:00 pm. The state's largest collection of waterlilies adorn the waterways and ponds of McKee. See a spectacular display of lotus and waterlilies in full bloom!

The day's events include repotting demonstrations, a plant sale, and vintage home and garden accessories. Plant experts will be available throughout the day to answer questions and advise guests on how to characterize hardy species from tropical varieties.

The Garden will be open early so visitors can enjoy the night blooming varieties that open around dusk and close by mid-morning of the following day or later. The day blooming plants open around mid-morning and close by afternoon.

The Garden is currently accepting submissions for its annual photo contest through Tuesday, June 13. Photos must be of waterlilies and lotus photographed at McKee Botanical Garden in 2016 or 2017 with a film or digital camera. Participants may submit one photo in each of three style categories: Color, Black and White, and Manipulated. A Youth category is also available for aspiring photographers ages 17 and under.

Photos will be judged by a panel of judges on Friday, June 16. All submissions will be on display in the Historic Hall of Giants during the Annual Waterlily Celebration on June 17, and visitors will have an opportunity to cast their vote for the "People's Choice" award during this event. The winning People's Choice photo will be recognized along with the first, second and third place winners and an honorable mention winner in the Adult categories. The Youth division will not be judged in individual categories but overall first, second and third place winners will be chosen. Winning photos from all divisions will be featured on McKee's website. Summer admission rates apply. Adults $10, Seniors $9, Children (ages 3-12) $5, McKee members and children under 3 are free.

2018 Historic Preservation Board Calendar
THEME: Mid-Century Modern

About the 2018 Calendar:

Historic Preservation is often thought of as preserving structures from past generations. Buildings constructed during our own lives or that of our parent's don't always conjure the word "historic". However, many structures built during the mid-twentieth century are well over 50 years of age and worth studying, celebrating, and preserving the design and ingenuity of this mod style.

The Mid-Century Modern style emerged after World War II, as new technology, including air-conditioning and electric appliances, and materials, such as aluminum and plastics, were created. Due to war time rationing, ornate and fanciful ornamentation was limited. Thus, experimenting with form, texture, materials, and floor plans resulted in the unique characteristics that define Mid-Century Modern.

Generally, residential Mid-Century Modern structures are one-story, asymmetrical, spread-out, and are expressed horizontally. Glass walls, long floor plans, low pitch to saw-tooth roofs, and unconventional schemes pushed architectural creativity. Windows are prominent with floor-to-ceiling glass, glazing to the eaves, within gables, or horizontal strips of windows. Angular details and clean lines are hallmarks of the style. The carport became more decorative than the past detached utilitarian garages as cars became a staple in each household and homes moved further from the city center. Carports could include decorative walls, screen panels, or extensions from the main roofline. Entrances were still formal but often off-centered, angled, or behind walls. The style often incorporated or considered its landscape and natural surroundings into the architecture.

Banks, offices, hotels, government buildings, and utility companies also favored the style during the 1940s through 1960s, including the Orlando Utilities Company's new administration building (now the Aloft Hotel) constructed in 1966. Local architect Richard Boone Rogers designed the OUC Admin building, the former Davis Park Motel, and the former City Hall with quintessential Mid-Century Modern elements. Commercial structures such as these often featured angular shaped canopies, glass walled offices, and exterior wall that extended through the interior. Signage included large standalone signs or signs with individually mounted letters. A precursor of Mid-Century Modern, the International Style formed in the late 1920s and influenced commercial architecture during the 1950s and '60s. The most common characteristics included cantilever construction, the use of glass and steel, rectangular forms, and taut plane surfaces. Though the style stripped away applied ornamentation and decoration, visual interest and ornamentation was provided through construction materials, geometric and lineal shapes, brise soleil, screen panels, and clean surfaces.

Frank Lloyd Wright gave inspiration for many of the architectural elements associated with American Mid-Century architecture including the seemingly grounded appearance, low pitch roofs, and horizontal sprawling floor plans. Mid-Century Modern was also prominent in Germany, Brazil, and Scandinavian countries. Architects such as Ludwig Mies van der Rohe, Joseph Eichler, Frank Gehry, Richard Neutra, and Donald Wexler defined the Mid-Century architecture phase.

Mid-Century Modern is an architectural style that defined an exciting and advancing period in American history and is commonly associated with its American structures. Though it is typically associated with the 1950s and 1960s, Mid-Century Modern architecture spanned 5-decades between the 1930s-1970s. Historically, this time period packs in the Space Race, Cold War, Civil Rights movement, and urban renewal. The use of steel, glass, and concrete created visually strong buildings that represented America's social progressiveness, emerging corporate powers, and advancing technologies. Thus, it's a style that should be celebrated and preserved as part of our American heritage. This familiar and recent past is as imprinted on our culture as our distant and rooted past styles, preferences, and culture.

Competition Details:

- Structures must be at least 50 years old (generally, 1938-1968)
Subject matter must be within the Orlando city limits.
Images may be of a single structure or focus on an interior or exterior architectural element. "Structures" may be defined as homes, commercial buildings, bridges, fountains, monuments, or signs with defining Mid-Century Modern style elements.
A $100 honorarium will be awarded to each photographer whose picture is selected
Photographs must be black and white and printed on 8" x 10" or 8 1/2" X 11" photo paper with a white border.
Vertical or horizontal photographs are acceptable.
Up to three photographs, labeled on the back with your name, daytime telephone number, e-mail address, and the address of the subject. Photos not labeled with a site address will be disqualified.
Must be submitted or postmarked by July 14, 2017 at 5 p.m.
Winning photos will be selected by members of the Historic Preservation Board through blind judging.
