MEMBER SPOTLIGHT: JENNIFER WIGGINS

I have always been a visual artist in one way or another. I started taking private art lessons when I was in 6th grade where I learned to use different mediums including oils, watercolor, pen & ink, etc. I later studied Graphic Design in college and I currently work in the Graphic Arts field. I started doing photography about eight years ago.

I am always "seeing" new things to capture whether it is a landscape, street scene or some type of animal. I shoot a wide variety of subjects combining my love of nature, people and exploring the world through travel. It's very gratifying for me to capture a place, a moment or learn a new technique in Photoshop.

Please visit my website at JenniferWigginsPhotography.com. Hope you enjoy my images as much as I enjoy creating them.

OCC FLICKR GROUP

We thought that you might be interested to hear a little more about our Flickr Group here at Orlando Camera Club. Flickr is a worldwide photo sharing platform with over 50 million subscribers and was recently acquired by SmugMug, but remains a separate operating entity. A Flickr account is FREE and remains FREE. Once you have the account, you can upload as many photos as you want, they will be viewed and discussed and followed by photographers all over the world. I can sit for hours looking at all the great work that has been uploaded, and continues to be uploaded every day. The level of photography is truly amazing.

We have set up a group for the Orlando Camera Club so our members can showcase their photos in one easily located group. Now your friends and fellow club members can find them easily and make comments of encouragement. Once your base Flickr account has been established and you have uploaded several photographs, find your way to the Orlando Camera Club Group and ask to join. Once your request has been received and approved, you can add 3 photos per day to the group and start the fun.

Margaret Bourke-White's Different World

This exhibition examines the work that trailblazing photographer, Margaret Bourke-White, produced abroad. Drawing on the Cornell Fine Arts Museum's collection of Bourke-White's photographs taken in Russia and augmented by loans of her photojournalism conducted during World War II and beyond, the exhibition explores Bourke-White's groundbreaking subject matter. Beyond her work in Europe, this exhibition will include Bourke-White's rarely-seen photographs taken in India, Pakistan, and South Africa, among other locations.

As a young photographer, Bourke-White abandoned pictorialism and pursued a documentary vision. Her first photographs of Russia were the earliest images produced by a foreign artist in that country under Joseph Stalin. Later, following her pioneering role as woman photojournalist during World War II, she produced highly emotional images of the liberation of the Buchenwald concentration camp. These photographs are some of the most powerful works produced in the twentieth century.

2019 Historic Preservation Calendar Photography Contest

2019 Historic Preservation Board Calendar – City of Orlando Photography Competition
What

The City of Orlando’s Historic Preservation Board is excited to announce the theme of the 2019 Historic Preservation Board Calendar and photography competition. The 2019 calendar celebrates Orlando’s historic streetscape and landscape features.

Streetscapes and landscape features visually enhance historic districts, neighborhoods, parks, and business districts. Orlando has a long history of dedicating efforts to increase urban design standards, encourage walkability, and promote our beautiful City.

In 1908, the City sponsored a contest to select a new motto for the City. Mrs. W.S. Branch, Sr., won with her title, "The City Beautiful". The City Beautiful movement was a National effort to enhance the quality of life in cities in the late 19th century and early 20th century by planting street trees for future canopies, paving streets, protecting lakeshores, and creating public parks. In Orlando, beautification efforts involved planting palms, azaleas, and flowering trees and shrubs throughout the City. In 1885, Albert Gallatin Branham planted approximately 400 oak trees in the City, which began the tree canopies found throughout our historic neighborhoods. Orlando’s oldest neighborhoods are also planned around one or more lakes. Many of these lakes are open to the public realm with accessible paths, bridges, and surrounding brick streets with the homes fronting the lake, instead of private lots hiding the lakes from common view. This was a deliberate design plan in Orlando to conserve and promote Orlando’s natural beauty.

2019 will celebrate 100 years since Mayor Giles authorized a bill entitling all women of the City of Orlando to participate in all municipal elections. On May 21, 1919, the women of Orlando exercised their first voting rights by voting and approving a $300,000 bond issue for street paving. In the following years, Orlando’s rural appearance and dirt roads was replaced with bricked streets, widened roadways, and marked parking spaces. In 1926, the Orlando City Plan proposed a system of pleasure drives which would connect lakes and parks with landscaped streets. For over 100 years, the City of Orlando has passed many ordinances and plans to protect and preserve Orlando’s natural beauty, as well as, establishing Historic Districts to preserve historic buildings, and increasing public parks to enhance the quality of life of its citizens. The Historic Preservation Board is seeking photographs that capture the built historic streetscape and landscape enhancements to its natural beauty. Streetscape and landscape features may be defined as bricked streets, decorative fences or gates, bridges, paths, arbors, fountains, statues, monuments, street lighting, or other constructed enhancements throughout the City’s historic neighborhoods, districts, parks, cemeteries, and historic Downtown business district. Photographs may be taken from residences, public streets, or any of the City’s local parks or gardens such as Lake Eola Park, Dickson-Azalea Park, Leu Gardens, Greenwood Cemetery, or Orwin Manor Park.

A $100 honorarium will be awarded to each photographer whose picture is selected for the 2019 Historic Preservation Board Calendar, sponsored by McCoy Federal Credit Union.

For more information about local historic streetscapes and landscapes, maps of the Historic Districts and local Parks, and the Calendar Competition, please visit: <http://www.cityoforlando.net/city-planning/boards/historic-preservation-board/board-calendars/>
